

Another brief communique today to say a big thank you to all families and our wonderful students. There are only really three items as information leading into next week that I wish to share today.

Support for parents (students with diverse needs)

Please access a range of podcasts here for parents to support kids during lockdown. There are specific links for students with diverse needs and we hope that these are helpful.

This link provides supportive information for parents with students with Autism Spectrum Disorder from the Australian Psychological Society.

Assessment

All student work submitted will be marked and will contribute to grades this semester. Status grades will not be used mandatorily and on mass. We would also like to let you know that we will endeavour to have online parent-teacher night available to you in week 10. We will clarify the format and booking system for Microsoft Teams meetings once we know about school restrictions and ACT lockdown dates next week.

Book week

Friday fun and some of the dressing up for book week
